Easy
For the first time ever, the census can be completed online—and in as little time as it takes to drink your morning coffee!

Important
Being a part of the count means helping your community!
The census helps decide funding for public services, schools, hospitals, fire departments, and more.

Safe
Strict federal law prohibits any law enforcement agency from accessing your personal information.

You can submit your response any time between April 1 and July 31, 2020 by phone, mail, or online.
For more information about your role in the 2020 Census and how it impacts your community, visit bit.ly/wyocounts or dial 2-1-1.
Everyone living in the United States is required by law to complete the census. The results are used to determine how much funding local communities receive for key public services and how many seats each state gets in Congress. Everyone counts.

The 2020 Census will count everyone living in the United States and the five U.S. territories. If you are filling out the census for your home, you should count everyone who is living with you as of April 1, 2020—this includes anyone who is living and sleeping there most of the time. If someone is staying in your home on April 1, and has no usual home elsewhere, you should count them in your response to the 2020 Census so they are not missed.

Did you know?

Children are one of the most undercounted groups in the country, which can lead to a severe lack of critical resources for them in their communities. Schools, libraries, government programs, and more all rely on the census count to receive funds in order to serve their communities. All children who live in your home, including foster children, grandchildren, nieces and nephews (even if they are living with you temporarily), should be included on your census form.

Your response matters.

Anyone not counted in the 2020 Census faces lack of resources and misrepresentation in their community and beyond. Ten years may not seem like much time to an adult, but one decade’s worth of resources for a child missed in the count could negatively impact their entire education and reduce the opportunities available to them in their community now and in adulthood.

Questions?

If you’re in need of help counting infants, out-of-town students, military personnel, children with more than one address, nursing home patients, inmates, hospital or treatment center patients, people without homes or in shelters, or people displaced by natural disasters, contact the U.S. Census Bureau by phone at 301-763-INFO or the web at 2020census.gov/en/who-to-count.
The Census is

Easy
For the first time ever, the census can be completed online—and in as little time as it takes to drink your morning coffee!

Important
Being a part of the count means helping your community!
The census helps decide funding for public services, schools, hospitals, fire departments, and more.

Safe
Strict federal law prohibits any law enforcement agency from accessing your personal information.

...and just around the corner!

---

You can submit your response any time between April 1 and July 31, 2020 by internet, phone, or mail.

For more information about your role in the 2020 Census and how it impacts your community, visit bit.ly/wyocounts or dial 2-1-1.

---

The Census is

Easy
For the first time ever, the census can be completed online—and in as little time as it takes to drink your morning coffee!

Important
Being a part of the count means helping your community!
The census helps decide funding for public services, schools, hospitals, fire departments, and more.

Safe
Strict federal law prohibits any law enforcement agency from accessing your personal information.

...and just around the corner!

---

You can submit your response any time between April 1 and July 31, 2020 by phone, mail, or online.

For more information about your role in the 2020 Census and how it impacts your community, visit bit.ly/wyocounts or dial 2-1-1.
Everyone living in the United States is required by law to complete the census. The results are used to determine how much funding local communities receive for key public services and how many seats each state gets in Congress. State and local officials also use census counts to draw boundaries for congressional, state legislative, and school districts.

The 2020 Census will count everyone living in the United States and the five U.S. territories. If you are filling out the census for your home, you should count everyone who is living with you as of April 1, 2020—this includes anyone who is living and sleeping there most of the time. If someone is staying in your home on April 1, and has no usual home elsewhere, you should count them in your response to the 2020 Census so they are not missed.

Questions?

If you're in need of help counting infants, out-of-town students, military personnel, children with more than one address, nursing home patients, inmates, hospital or treatment center patients, people without homes or in shelters, or people displaced by natural disasters, contact the U.S. Census Bureau by phone at 301-763-INFO or the web at 2020census.gov/en/who-to-count.